

Contribution ID: 80

Type: Overview talk

Cosmological Constraint on Neutrino mass

The combination of early and late cosmology probes gives the tightest upper bound on neutrino masses to date. I will briefly review the physics behind the cosmological measurements of neutrino masses, and the state-of-the-art constraint on the sum of neutrino masses from the latest cosmological data of cosmic microwave background and the large-scale structure of the universe.

Primary author: HUANG, Zhiqi (Sun Yat-Sen University)

Presenter: HUANG, Zhiqi (Sun Yat-Sen University)