

Mu2E Extinction Systems

The Mu2E experiment uses a bunched beam to eliminate prompt backgrounds. For this to work, the fraction of the beam arriving between bunches, the so-called extinction, must be less than $1.0E-10$. In this talk we will describe our plans for achieving and monitoring extinction at this level of precision.

Primary author: KASPER, peter (fermilab)

Presenter: KASPER, peter (fermilab)

Track Classification: Muon Physics